“ Dear Eldridge & Family, I wrote this little prayer to carry with me and it helps with the loss of my own Son. Maybe it will help you for you have had a rough time of things lately. Took me a week to write this for Chris. To Your Angel & Son Michael: I have realized that Angels may come to us in many ways. They come to us in laughter and in tears. Angels are with us in every part of life, Helping us and showing us kindness and goodness. Angels reflect the magnificence of Heaven and the spectacular Home God has prepared for all of us who belong to him. If you look to the stars at night to find your Angel you have done well but if you look inside your heart you have done even better. May you always walk with the morning light to guide you with an Angel by your side for good company.. Life may run wild at times but remember God holds the reins and the Angels tend to the Harness. I have heard it said that Angels dwell in the House where there is Love. Love compels us and guides us through life in everything we do. Like I said my bright star in the sky is my Angel who happens to be my Son Chris. Michael is your bright star in the sky to help guide you through each and every day. God Bless all of you.
